Cultural life sponsors satirical review

To bring the campus in touch with cultural opportunities in the Chicago area was the purpose of the Cultural Life Committee. Its responsibility was to extend and intensify the intellectual and social awareness of the students.

In keeping with these goals, its program included the Monday morning Lecture Series. The guest speakers this year were Mr. Norman Thomas, Dr. Norton Ginsburg, Sen. Wayne Morse, Dr. Robert Derbeger, Rev. Paul Sherry, Henry Mark Petrakis, Mr. Harry Bauras, Dr. Han Suyin, Dr. Samuel Hayakawa and John Aldridge.

The committee also sponsored student-faculty firesides, the Foreign Film Series, and offered Lyric Opera tickets at student rates. This year, two special evening programs were held. The Second City presented a satirical review, and a three day folk festival was held in April.

One of the special evening programs offered by Cultural and Intellectual Life is presented by the Second City. The group's repertoire consists of several scenes of satire on current events.

Social Life features the Brandywines

Social Life Committee, under the leadership of Mary Beth Kirby, sponsored two concerts this year. Opening the season, the Brandywine Singers presented an evening of pop-folk music. The Spring Concert featured Glenn Yarbrough. Yarbrough's performance was jointly sponsored by Social Life and AWS as part of Bachelor's Holiday Weekend.

A lecture and film by world-famous skier John Jay was also part of this year's Social Life program.

Accompanist Joy Christopher plays an original composition at Social Life's first concert of the year.

Stokely Carmichael expounds on Black Power

Robert Short, author of The Gospel According to Peanuts, speaks on the religious vision of modern art.

Sponsoring Stokely Carmichael was one of the activities of the Religious Life Committee of SGA. Carmichael, leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), spoke to students and faculty on the philosophy behind Black Power. Robert Short, author of the Gospel According to Peanuts, explained the religious vision of modern art.

Religious Life also provided speakers for the Wednesday chapel services, conducted vespers, sponsored Religious Emphasis Week, and planned the Winter Retreat. Ray Wood headed this year's committee.

Exploring the philosophy behind Black Power, Stokely Carmichael speaks before EC students.

Kent Schneider leads jazz worship service.

Retreat serves as tension releaser

The 1967 Winter Retreat was a new kind of retreat for Elmhurst College. The theme was Catholic-Protestant Dialogue and the book Living Room Dialogues served as the basis for discussion. To present both sides of various issues were Father Andy Nelson and Reverend Jack La Marr.

The retreat, sponsored by the Religious Life Committee of SGA and held at Bowen Country Club in Wisconsin, gave students a chance to relax by taking part in discussions, skating, sledding, hiking and free nights with music and late snacks.

Under the editorship of Dave Ostendorf the paper presented the views of the various groups on campus. The ELM BARK also kept students informed about up-coming events. The paper was published weekly for the forty-seventh year.

Lehman captures float competition

"As Time Goes By" student, faculty, and alumni will remember the 1966 Homecoming Weekend. A real, old-fashioned mellow drammer, "Pure as the Driven Snow or A Working Girl's Secret," directed by Charles Radloff initiated the weekend's festivities. After the performance the audience gathered behind Chapel to join the football team and cheerleaders in a pep rally.

Saturday afternoon the Blue Jays took to the field to defeat St. Procopius 26 to 20. At halftime E. C. fans were introduced to Homecoming Queen Shirley Samonek and her court. That evening, couples found the cafeteria transformed into a "prohibition saloon" complete with a funeral parlour as a front. Once inside, couples danced to the music of the Warren Covington Orchestra.

The weekend's activities ended at the Sunday morning Chapel service. Dr. George Barger delivered the message.

Guys lavish in luxury—for a while

The guys wished it would continue all year, but AWS created Bachelors' Holiday for only one week-end. Guys considered it a welcomed change as the girls did the asking, and the paying.

Glenn Yarbrough's concert on Thursday night marked the beginning of the festivities. The program was jointly sponsored by AWS and the Social Life Committee. E-Club kept up the holiday spirit Friday with their annual variety show. The grand finale arrived Saturday night as couples crossed the moat into medieval Camelot. Four hundred excited youngsters were bused in from orphanages, schools, and churches to attend the AWS circus. Each child was greeted by an adopted parent, who was waiting to take them around to the various booths, and finally to the Big Top. Probably the main attraction under the Big Top was the clowns. Somehow they seemed to lose all the water-gun fights with the younger set. After the Big Top, tired youngsters and tired clowns boarded buses for the return trip to Chicago.

Every Tuesday and Thursday, Elmhurst College students boarded buses to travel into Chicago to tutor at Howland Elementary School. The tutors sought to provide their tutees with the individual attention which they are unable to receive in their over-crowded classes. As well as helping students with their reading and arithmetic, tutors tried to create a spirit of enthusiasm for learning. Social activities were also a part of the Tutoring Project. The tutees were brought out to the campus for a Christmas Party and the AWS Circus.

Spring Weekend (or so it was called before it was cancelled) attracted many visitors to the college. The weekend was started-off by the annual Poly-Glee Club Concert. Besides the Ell, there was an additional sporting event — the famous Elmhurst Tricycle Race, which attracts trike riders from all over the campus. # The Students

Seniors end college careers at EC

As graduation drew near, the seniors found themselves wondering how four years could speed by so quickly. The space between the fall of 1963 and the spring of 1967 suddenly seemed very small.

The Class of 1967 was the last class to stand in line at the old Commons waiting to be served their dinner. This class witnessed the building of the Union and the Science Center. They also witnessed the change in atmosphere at Elmhurst.

But now the bull sessions, the cramming, and the evenings at the Pheasant are all over for the Class of 1967, and the future awaits them.

Juniors host "An Evening in Bangkok"

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Helen Fricke, treasurer; Rich Gerber, vice president; Donna Langlas, secretary; and Keith Karau, president.

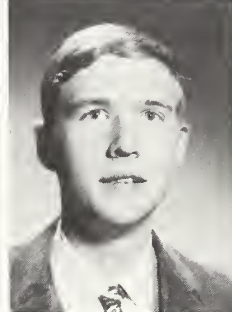

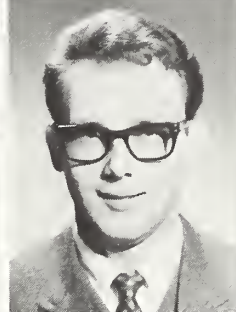

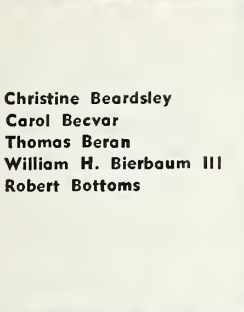

The biggest responsibility facing the Junior Class was planning the Junior Dinner Dance. To raise money for the event, the class sold Junior Goodies, and sponsored a car wash and slave day. The dance was held in May at Stouffer's in Oak Brook. Donna Langlas was elected queen over "An Evening in Bangkok."

The Junior year was a time for discovering that the decisions made during the sophomore year were all wrong. It was a time for changing one's major once more. And it was a time to wish graduation was more than a year away.

Sophomores organize semi-formal

With one year behind them, the sophomores returned to initiate the freshmen. They gave the freshmen much the same treatment they themselves had received, and hated, the previous year.

When freshman initiation was completed, the sophomores turned their attention to raising money for their semi-formal dance. Their main money-raising scheme was an auction for which they produced a genuine auctioneer. The dance materialized in January. The theme of the dance, "An Evening in the Arctic," proved quite appropriate for the snow laden January.

After the semi-formal, sophomores turned to more serious endeavors, such as choosing a major and deciding how to get a grade point high enough to avoid the draft.

Frosh select council to lead class

FRESHMAN COUNCIL: Warren Anderson, Nancy Wagner, Diane Buttles, Sandy Janawiak, Bark Marann, Roseann Hotz, Cindy Goeman, and Cliff Smiley.

This year's Freshman Class showed itself to be unique from the very beginning by electing an eight member council to preside over its activities. The Council, suggested by one of the class members, replaced the traditional four class officers.

The freshmen, over 300 in number, passed quickly through the initial "beanie" stage, and readily adjusted to college life. Their spirit and enthusiasm helped to make their first and probably most influential year of college a rewarding one. The ideas and talents they possessed were welcomed by the upper-classmen. Activities such as a Pajoma Dance in the Union and a pep session in the gym preceding a basketball game were freshman contributions to campus life.

The joys of registration!

To Students and Faculty:

A yearbook is a record of one precious year of the college experience, and in the 1967 ELMS we have attempted to capture the spirit of that year. We have tried to make the ELMS more than a record book; we have tried to make it a book of memories. It is our belief that the spirit of a year is captured in the fleeting actions of students, and not in posed, formal pictures. It was things like the appearance of Senator Edward Kennedy, the gigantic snow storm, and the napalm burning which made 1967 different than other years and Elmhurst College different than other schools. We have captured these events, and many others forever in pictures.

Because of this philosophy, we have eliminated the formal organization section and have represented the organizations through their activities. It is our belief that formal group pictures do little in telling the story of an organization. The true story of an organization can be told only through its activities.

We have not changed the 1967 ELMS just for the sake of change. We have changed the book in order to make it a better book. The changes represent the thoughts and concerns of many people. We wish to offer special thanks to the photographers of Koehne Studios, Clarence Sikes of Delmar Publishing Company, and Harold Warp our student photographer. Without their help we could not have attempted to present you with an informal yearbook.

We are now proud to present to you the 1967 ELMS. We hope that it contains all that made 1967 an unforgettable and wonderful year for you.

Sincerely,
Jean Jackson
Editor-in-chief
